Above Left: The finished trail and entrance off Royal Ave.

Above Right: The newly planted entrance garden to the walking trail.

Bottom Left: A young volunteer digs a hole for a tree planting.
Above Left: Several volunteers from the “Richmond Urban Conservation Corps” take a break from work to pose for a picture.

Right: A young volunteer fills up a hole with dirt to stabilize a newly planted tree.

Bottom Left: A group of UPS volunteers work together to dig several holes for new trees to be planted in.
Top Left: Volunteers load up a new tree onto a dolly to bring out to the trail where volunteers have holes dug for them.

Middle: A young volunteer digs out a large shovel full of dirt so a new tree can be planted.

Top Right: Volunteers from Luckstone and Wells Fargo use a gas-powered auger to quickly dig large holes for the trees.

Bottom Right: UPS volunteers get down and dirty planting a new tree.
Top Left: The prepped trail ready for stone to be laid down.

Top Middle: Luckstone lent their machines to help in moving both stone and trees!

Top Right: A volunteer uses a plate-damping machine to pack down the trail before the stone was laid.

Bottom Middle: Amber Ellis of the James River Association and Tim Gaylord of the Green Infrastructure Center plant a small tree.

Bottom Right: Amy Robins of the Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay and several UPS volunteers move a tree into place.
Top Left: Delegate Betsy Carr shakes hands with volunteers.

Top Right: Watershed Coordinator Mack Brown and Delegate Carr listen to Bob Argabright speak about the importance of community.

Bottom Left: Councilperson Ellen Robertson and Delegate Carr share a laugh.

Bottom Right: Wells Fargo reps Corliss B. Archer and Brenda Roberts present the City of Richmond with a $10,000 check.
Top Left: Community members learn about physical health.

Top Right: Karen Firehock of the Green Infrastructure Center explains the “Walkable Watershed” concept.

Bottom Left: Lt. Naoroz smiles with his new balloon!

Bottom Middle: Face-Painting was a huge hit with the kids!

Bottom Right: Free native plant give-aways!
The Bellemade Revitalize Southside Festival

Thank you to all our sponsors!

Major Park Sponsors:
- National Fish and Wildlife Foundation
- Altia Group
- Environmental Protection Agency
- Chesapeake Bay Program
- City of Richmond
- Virginia Department of Forestry
- Wells Fargo

Event Sponsors:
- Green Infrastructure Center
- Councilperson Ellen Robertson
- Pepsi Beverages Company
- United Parcel Service
- Genes Supermarket
- Come & Go Food Market
- Luck Companies
- First Baptist Church - Men's Ministry
- HandsOn Greater Richmond

October 19, 2013 - Oak Grove Elementary School and Community Center - Richmond, VA